

- By Samantha Castleman

How project-based learning has benefited me as a student

The projects in this course have had much more real world connections than regular projects. They actually feel relevant.

Overall statement about my learning experience

This course made me think outside of the box; instead of just thinking about the work, it pushed me to go the extra mile and really understand what I'm learning about.

How project-based learning has benefited me as a student

Definitely motivation. When I can get up and get involved, I don't get bored as easily, thus making me more motivated.

Overall statement about my learning experience

It was very inspiring. It made me feel very connected to what I was studying . Sometimes in typical courses, students occasionally feel that what they're learning isn't actually related to the subject. In this, I got to see how everything about World War I was connected to Vic High.